TORONTO

"I dreamed not then that, ere the rolling year
Had filled its circle, I should wander here
In musing awe; should tread this wondrous world,

See all its store of inland waters hurled
In one vast volume down Niagara's steep,
Where the blue hills of old Toronto shed
Their evening shadows o'er Ontario's bed."

THOMAS MOORE.

TORONTO is a Huron Indian word meaning "the place of meeting," and the name was given on account of its having been a favorite gathering place of these Indians.

When Upper Canada was made a separate province in 1792 its first capital was Newark
(now Niagara), at the mouth of the Niagara River. Governor Simcoe chose a site for the capital directly opposite Newark, and called it
York. In 1834 it had a population of 9,000,

Ecumenical Methodist Conference

and was erected into a city. and the old name, Toronto, was restored. For some time its growth was slow. but at the Dominion decennial census of 1901 it had a population of 208,040.

A census of the Dominion was taken in June last, but the results have not yet been announced. It has been generally claimed that the population of Toronto is now over 400,000, but it is probable that 375,000 or 380,000 will be found to be nearer the mark.

In the Canadian census the people are classified according to their religion. According to the census of 1901 the numbers in the city belonging to the different churches were as follows: Church of England, 62,406; Methodists, 48,278; Presbyterians, 41,639; Roman Catholics, 28,994; Baptists, 11,898; Congregationalists, 3,658; Jews, 3,083; Lutherans, 972; Brethren, 682; Salvation Army, 625; Christian Scientists, 593; Disciples, 524; Plymouth Brethren, 326; Unitarians, 262; Spiritualists, 256; Swedenborgians, 225; Friends, 221; Mormons, 173; no religion, 130; Mennonites, 105; Theosophists, 49; Buddhists, 23. The remainder were distributed among nearly fifty "isms."

Parliament Buildings

It is altogether likely that the census this year will not disclose any material change in the relative numbers of the different churches, except that during the decade there has been a large immigration of Russian Jews and Italians.

The number of churches in the city belonging to the different denominations is as follows: Church of England, 49; Methodist, 47; Presbyterian, 42; Baptist, 28; Roman Catholic, 22; Congregational, 9; synagogues, 6, and about 20 belonging to minor bodies.

The Methodist Churches have the largest number of sittings, and when the census has been taken by city newspapers of the actual attendance at church on a particular Sunday, the Methodist Churches have had the largest number of worshippers. The latest published Sunday School statistics for the whole city are those collected for the International S. S. Convention in this city in 1905, which showed the following numbers: Methodist, 15,853; Presbyterian, 10,880; Church of England, 10,826; Baptist, 6,350; Congregationalist, 1,265; smaller bodies, 1,200; union schools, 910.

Ecumenical Methodist Conference

In 1901 the membership of the Methodist Churches in the city was 14,153; in 1911 it is 23,129.

Some of the Methodist institutions of the city which delegates should visit are: Victoria University in Queen's Park, main building; new library, just completed; Annesley Hall, ladies' residence; men's residence in course of erection; the Fred Victor Mission, corner of Queen and Jarvis Streets; the new Deaconess Training School, St. Clair Avenue and Avenue Road; the Italian Mission premises, corner of Elm and Teraulay Streets, west of Elm Street Methodist Church; the Methodist Book Room, 29-33 Richmond Street West, etc.

Among the principal public buildings are the following:

The City Hall, Queen Street, one block west of Yonge Street, which cost $2,500,000. From the tower, reached by an elevator (free) which runs from 9 to 5, a fine view of the city, harbor and island may be obtained, and on a clear day the opposite shore of Lake Ontario, 30 miles distant, is visible.

It has now the largest attendance of students of any university in the British Empire. For 1910-1911 the number was 4,112. With it are affiliated in federation Victoria University (Methodist), 601 students in Arts and Theology last year; Trinity University (Church of England); Knox College (Presbyterian); Wycliffe College (Church of England), and St. Michael's College (Roman Catholic). In the Convocation Hall will be held a special convocation of Victoria University on Monday evening, October 9th, in connection with the Conference.

CANADA

Canada and Canadian Methodism

The Dominion of Canada is composed of nine Provinces—Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, and British Columbia, and the North-West Territories. Its area is slightly larger than that of the United States in North America. As above stated, a Dominion census was taken in June of this year. The results have not yet been announced, but are expected in a few days, and may be given out before the close of the Conference. In consequence of the great influx of immigrants during the past few years, most orators and writers have of late been claiming that the present census will show a population of eight millions; but it is probable that this is an overestimate, and that it is not likely to exceed seven and one-quarter millions.

According to the census of 1901 the population of the Dominion was then 5,371,315, distributed among the principal churches as follows: Roman Catholics, 2,229,600 (two-thirds in the Province of Quebec); Methodists, 916,886; Presbyterians, 842,442; Church of England, 680,620; Baptists, 316,477; Lutherans, 92,524; Mennonites, 31,797; Congregationalists, 28,293; Jews, 16,401; Greek Church, 15,630; Pagans, 15,107; Salvation Army, 10,308; Adventists, 8,058; Brethren, 8,014; Mormons, 6,891; minor sects, 64,633.

Ecumenical Methodist Conference

Canadian Methodism had its origin from both English and American sources. Nearly all the Methodist Churches in England had their missions and branches in Canada; and the largest body in old Canada had close relations alternately with the English Wesleyan Church and the Methodist Episcopal Church of the United States.

In 1874 the Eastern British-America Conference, which included Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, and the island of Newfoundland; the Wesleyan Methodist Church in Ontario and Quebec, which was affiliated with the English Wesleyan Church; and the New Connection Church, which was a branch of the church of that name in England, formed a union under the name of the Methodist Church of Canada. In 1884 this Church formed a union with the other Methodist Churches in Canada, viz., Methodist Episcopal Church, and with the Primitive Methodist Church and the Bible Christian Church, these two latter being branches of the churches of the same name in England under the name of "The Methodist Church."

The membership of the Methodist Church in 1901 was 289,162. In 1911 it is 345,088, an increase of 55,925, or nearly 20 per cent. in the decade.

The Province of Ontario is the most populous of the Dominion, and in 1901 had a population of 2,182,947, divided religiously as follows: Methodists, 666,388; Presbyterians, 477,386; Roman Catholics, 390,304; Church of England, 367,937; Baptists, 116,320; Lutherans, 48,052; Congregationalists, 15,289; Mennonites, 12,208; Disciples, 10,154; Salvation Army, 6,479; Brethren, 6,416; Jews, 5,321; Friends, 3,648. The remainder were distributed among the smaller bodies.

First Methodist Church in Toronto

Cor. King and Jordan Sts.

METROPOLITAN CHURCH

The first Methodist Church in Toronto—a frame building on King Street West, corner of Jordan Street (where the Bank of Commerce now stands), a picture of which appears above—was erected in 1818. It was organized with six members. In 1832 the congregation moved to the new Adelaide Street Church, at the corner of Adelaide and Toronto Streets. In 1870 the Metropolitan square, containing $3\frac{1}{4}$ acres, was acquired, and the Adelaide Street Church disposed of. The congregation worshipped in a tabernacle built on the square, until the present church was opened on the 4th of April, 1872.

The land, church and parsonage with the furnishings have cost about $350,000. The fine parsonage and magnificent organ are recent gifts of two generous members of the church. The organ has received additions and improvements during the past year and is said to be now the finest instrument in Canada and one of the finest on the continent. The church and property are free from debt. The value of the land has increased about twenty fold since its purchase in 1870.

ORGAN RECITAL

The music at the public services of the Conference will be led by the organ and choir of the Metropolitan Church; at the regular sessions, by the organ and the Conference Precentors. Commencing Oct. 5th, Mr. Wheeldon, organist of the Metropolitan Church, will give an Organ Recital for an hour each day, after the noon adjournment of the Conference, except on Saturdays, when the recital will be from 4 to 5.

EXHIBIT OF ANTIQUITIES

For the first time in connection with an Ecumenical Conference there will be an interesting collection of Methodist Antiquities. By the kindness of the British Wesleyan Methodist Conference and institutions and private individuals, as well as colleges and other institutions and individuals on this continent, there will be at this Conference such a collection as has never before been brought together.

Portraits, interesting manuscripts, letters, books, personal effects, etc., of John Wesley, his associates and successors, as well as of the founders and leaders of Methodism in the United States and Canada, will be found in large numbers in the rooms adjoining the parlors of the Metropolitan Church, and will well repay visits and a close examination. Some of the large oil paintings will be hung in the schoolroom, parlor and other portions of the building.

As many of the more valuable articles will be brought personally by delegates, the exhibit will not be ready for delegates and visitors for the first two or three days of the Conference.

COMPOSITION AND BASIS OF THE CONFERENCE

Composition of the Conference.—The Conference shall be composed of 500 members, consisting as far as possible of an equal number of ministers and laymen. It shall be divided into two sections, 300 being assigned to the Western Section and 200 to the Eastern Section. The Eastern Section shall comprehend the Methodist Churches in Great Britain and Ireland, France, South Africa, Australasia, and Mission Fields; and the Western Section, the Methodist Churches in the United States, Canada and Japan, with their foreign work.

The Basis of the Conference.—The Conference shall be held on the same basis and with the same limitations as those adopted in the three preceding Conferences, viz: It shall frankly recognize the differences that exist among the various Methodist Churches, and it shall exclude from discussion all points of doctrine, discipline, and Church government regarded as fundamental by any of the Churches, and as to which any one of the Churches differs from any of the others. (Rule X.)

RULES AND REGULATIONS

I. For convenience of organization, and for the purposes of equity and fraternity, the whole Methodist community shall be included in four general divisions, as follows:—

First Division: Methodist Church of Canada, Methodist Protestant Church, African Methodist Episcopal Church, African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church, Colored Methodist Episcopal Church, Primitive Methodist Church, Free Methodist Church, Wesleyan Methodist Connection, Union American Methodist Episcopal Church, British Methodist Episcopal Church, Japan Methodist Church.

Second Division: Methodist Episcopal Church, and Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

Third Division: British Wesleyan Methodist Church.

Fourth Division: Primitive Methodist Church, United Methodist Church, Irish Methodist Church, Wesleyan Reform Union Church, Independent Methodist Church, French Methodist Church, South African Methodist Church and Australian Methodist Church, and Methodist Church of New Zealand.

It is understood that the several Churches described are inclusive of their respective mission fields and affiliated Conferences.

II. There shall be a business Committee, consisting of twenty members, four of whom shall be elected from the First Division, six from the Second Division, five from the Third Division, and five from the Fourth Division. Two from each Division shall be, if practicable, laymen. This committee shall be chosen by the Eastern and Western Sections of the Executive Committee, on nomination of the members of the said Executive Committee representing respectively the several general Divisions. The first named on the Business Committee by the First Western Division shall be the convener; but the committee shall choose by ballot its own Chairman and Secretary. All questions, proposals, resolutions, communications, or other matters not included in the regular program of exercises, which may be presented to the Conference, shall be passed to the Secretary, read by their titles only, and referred without debate or motion to the Business Committee. A period at the close of the regular program of the final session of each day shall be set apart for reports from the Business Committee; but the reports of the Business Committee shall at all times be privileged, and shall take precedence of any other matter which may be before the Conference.

Ecumenical Methodist Conference

III. A President for each session of the Conference shall be appointed, the selection to be made by the Western and Eastern Sections of the Executive Committee, in alternate order, as nearly as possible.

IV. The Western and Eastern Sections of the Executive Committee shall nominate for confirmation by the Conference, at the opening of its first regular business session, four secretaries, one from each general division; but if the nomination thus made shall fail of confirmation, in whole or in part, then the Conference shall proceed to fill the vacant place or places in such manner as it may determine, provided that the mode of distribution herein indicated shall be maintained.

Ecumenical Methodist Conference

V. Every session shall be opened with devotional exercises, to be conducted by some person or persons selected by the Executive Committees.

VI. A period, not exceeding an hour of each forenoon session, shall be set apart for devotional exercises, reading of journal, and the presentation of resolutions or other papers not included on the regular programme. Every resolution must be reduced to writing and signed by at least two names. The Conference may, at any time, close this morning hour and proceed to the regular order, but the question must be taken without debate or subsidiary motion.

VII. No essay presented in the regular program shall occupy more than twenty minutes in the reading; the appointed addresses shall be allowed ten minutes each. After the appointed addresses, whatever unoccupied time remains of any session shall be devoted to a general discussion of the topics under consideration; but no member shall occupy more than five minutes, or speak more than once on the same subject. This rule shall be strictly enforced by the presiding officer.

The appointed addresses may not be read, but notes, as aids to memory, may be used.

VIII. At the close of the regular order, at the final session of each day, the President shall call for a report from the Business Committee. In debates on reports, whenever presented, no member shall occupy more than five minutes, nor speak more than once on the same report; but the Chairman of the Committee, or some one designated by him, shall be allowed five minutes in which to close the debate.

Ecumenical Methodist Conference

IX. All votes taken in the Conference shall be by individual count, without any reference to the particular Church with which the voter is connected.

X. No votes shall be taken on matters affecting the internal arrangements of any of the several Methodist Churches.

XI. Any alteration of, or addition to, these regulations thought desirable must be sent to the Business Committee, and reported back to the Conference, before a final vote is taken, and no rule shall be suspended except by consent of three-fourths of the Conference.

N.B.—The manuscripts of the essays read and of addresses delivered, being the property of the Conference, shall be immediately passed over to the Secretary of the Conference, for publication in the volume of the Proceedings of the Conference. Compliance with this rule is absolutely indispensable to accuracy in the records of the Conference.
